"FLU" APPEARS TO BE ON THE WANE

Few New Cases And Not So Serious At Any Point In County.

Inquiry by telephone and from physicians, as to "flu" conditions throughout the county shows a decided falling off in the epidemic. At no point could we learn of more than a very few, in fact scattering, cases of late development. The prevalence of the malady appears to be general over the county, we could not find any point or territory of much size that was wholly free from trouble due to influenza, although in small sections the cases were of a few days duration perhaps.

It appears that complaints have been lodged with the State Board of Health, at the County Board's action in forbidding all public meetings, schools, &c., within the whole county. Dr. J. L. Whitteberg, of Louisville, Sanitary Inspector for the State Board of Health, was in the county making investigation of the situation Wednesday and yesterday, but we could not find out what he thought of the matter, and of course he would say nothing at this time for publication, that is, with reference to any recommendation he may have decided on making to either the State or County Board.

If conditions continue to improve in this county, and the territory surrounding us, we feel that the ban should and will be lifted before April 1st, and that with comparative safety, which should always be the watch word. In place of the absolute ban, there may be a strict and rigid quarantine of all "flu" patients, even extending to those who claim to have nothing more than a cold and if we do this let's have such enforcement of the order as will land each and every violator in jail, or at least fine him or her good and stout.

THE EMPTY CRADLE.

By I. D. Claire.

Few of life's tragedies are so touchingly sad and so appealingly pitiful as the disappointment of the maternal instinct. Such an example, involving the blending of devotion to an ideal and patient resignation to events, came under my observation some time ago, and in a manner, so far as I know, without a parallel in recorded history.

While in a neighboring city I was invited into the home of a fellow member of my craft, who happens to be one of my few partial admirers, whose name for reasons the sequel of my story will make obvious, I can not reveal. It qualifies to say that I had known him intimately for a few years, and that our admiration was warmly mutual. I had not previously met his admirable wife, about whom the fabric of my story is woven. Upon entering his home observation impressed me with the order and elegance that attested the taste and industry of its mistress. Devoted to her husband and anxious to be gracious to his friend she greeted me with a welcome and attention that honored the pride of her husband and pleased the fancy of his guest. I am by nature and habit a student of human character, and upon meeting Mrs. L.—I shall call her that for convenience of a name—I was wonder-struck with her apparent dual character. She was not above thirty and was charmingly beautiful in gracefulness of manner, as in outline of body and lineament of face. Her vigor of mind and strength of body were attested by that softness of manner and grace of action that, to the critical observer, so beautifully balances a human character. There was a simple directness about her manner that appealed to the observer's confidence and an air of firmness that commanded his respect. She was refinedly congenial and markedly cheerful, and yet about her was an indescribable notice that some transcendent event, not common to her kind, had come into her life. There was not a morbid note in her voice, no appeal for pity in her face, and yet I read some pathetic mystery into her life. If a great sorrow, then it had been softened and refined by some moderating event not unlike that of the faithful disciple turning away from the Calvary sacrifice, laden indeed with ineffable sorrow, and yet indulging the emotion of ecstasy at having been one of the immortal few to witness the divine spectacle of the death of a God to redeem a world.

While taking my leave of the most agreeable visit of my life I observed in another room, the door of which stood slightly ajar, a silent and solemn solution, as I then believed, of the woman's mysterious manner. Over near a window I saw an empty cradle, its bed and covering as white as the new henna lily, on a table aside and on the mantel above I observed a wealth of toys, some to thrill the touch of baby hands and others to please the fancy of baby eyes, and in careless order about the room were scattered the dainty garments of an expensive layette. But nowhere appeared the object of this lavish attention. It occurred to me then that death had but recently robbed this family of an only babe.

Alone in my room I wondered at the manner of a woman who could bravely repress her feelings of recent grief lest she unduly burden a friend. I knew it was not the habit of a mother recently risen from the graveside of her darling dead. I wondered, too, why Mr. L. had never mentioned the event to his partial friend.

On a subsequent visit to the city I was repeating the touching incident of my visit to the Ls. to a lady whom I happened to know was their friend. I was trying to express the depth of my sympathy for these people in the loss of their babe, and for their heroic courage in suppressing their grief, when the lady interrupted. "It is not dead, it never came, and all that you saw was sentiment of the maternal instinct blooming with the beauty of the garden rose. Myself, the mother of three darling babes, I know, as you, a man, can never know, the mad craving of a woman's soul to feel the quick and thrilling heartbeat of a babe against her breast, and her violent yearning to unburden a love upon her child, that is not given her to yield to any other human being that lives. Mrs. L. is the purest and sweetest woman I ever knew, and she has made babyhood forever sacred to those fortunate enough to visit her altar room of mother love, who must bear away with them an imperishable memory of what a baby means to a woman. She told me of your visit, and how she left the door ajar. She adores her husband, and whom he calls friend finds an open doorway to her heart, and you may say you are one of the favored few who have read the divine story she so cautiously guards from the eyes of a vulgar world. I am glad that a writer has visited her home and witnessed the silent but solemn sacredness of the maternal heart yearning to be appeased, and you must, as I know you will, recount to the world this most beautiful and touching story of the holy relation of mother love and baby love, never recorded since the birth of a babe in a manger in far off Bethlehem."

EARTH QUAKE FEEL.

The most perceptible earth quake shock noticed here in years, was experienced Monday night. Windows and doors fairly danced, many people who had retired early were awakened and not realizing at the time as to what had happened, got out of bed in order to try to discover the why's and wherefores of the mysterious rumbling and unearthly rattling, when all around was so quiet and still. Two distinct waves or quakes were felt.

W. P. Hailoy was appointed and qualified as guardian of Roma Renfrow.

S. L. Fulkerson has been appointed and qualified as administrator of Marvin P. Kimbly, deceased.

V. L. Jarnagin qualified as administrator of John A. Jarnagin, deceased. The latter appointment was merely for the purpose of clearing up some records.

Burial of the remains took place at West Providence yesterday afternoon. Deceased is survived by his wife, two daughters and five sons, three of whom are now in France with the U. S. Army.

LINCOLN BANQUET

Meeting Harmonious And Attendance Is Very Large

A large and enthusiastic assemblage marked the fifth annual banquet given by the Lincoln Protective Club at the Seelbach Hotel, in Louisville, Wednesday night. The main guest of honor and chief speaker of the occasion was "Jim" Watson, U. S. Senator from the "Hoover" State.

Congressman Langley, in his address launched a boom for the Indiana Senator for the Republican nomination for President. Langley said "There is a longing for the old time religion of the fathers of the Republic, these are some of the reasons why I would like to see a man like Jim Watson President of the United States."

The above sentence received an ovation and Watson was compelled to acknowledge the ovation before the Kentucky Congressman could proceed.

Everybody was in a splendid humor and overflowing with enthusiasm.

Convention Called.

The State Central Committee chose Lexington as the place and May 11th as the date for holding Platform Convention to formulate declaration of principles on which the next campaign will be waged.

SOME FACTS GLEANED FROM ASSESSOR'S BOOK

The assessor's books are a bit interesting for the odd items and varying values mentioned, as well as for the more substantial facts recorded. In looking over the recently completed recapitulation sheet we note the following:

Horse Branch and Pattieville were the only precincts to list whines, whistles etc. Horse Branch citizens had in their possessions July 1, $30 worth of wet goods, and Pattieville quench thirsting beverages to the value of $5.00.

The total value of household and kitchen furniture for the entire county makes an average value for the individual housekeeper of only $41, or a little less than the value of outfitting a single bed.

That Ohio county people are poor reekers is shown by the fact that its thirty thousand citizens list only $6,000 worth of books, or twenty cents worth of books per capita.

The county lists only 3,320 sheep, or only about one sheep to the ten persons. For taxation these sheep are listed at $8.20 each, but if killed by dogs would be listed with the county court at $25 a head.

Ohio county farmers and Billie Schampire together own 17,202 hogs, which they list at $9.10 each.

1737 town lots are worth for taxation purposes $160 each. The price asked would probably be much higher.

There are 1565 bee hives in the county, which are listed at an average value of $3.00 per hive. Judging by the great number of stings and the small amount of honey we get out of a little experience in bee keeping, we think the bee hives are listed entirely too high.

TOBACCO SALES

AT OWENSBORO

Wednesday's sales of tobacco over the loose leaf floors of Owensboro, were rather light, at what might be considered fair or steady prices. Reports show that a good grade of tobacco is being offered. There was a total of 119,225 pounds of pryor offered which brought $19,464.20, or an average of $16.32.

There were also 5,900 pounds of burley sold that brought an average of $24.75 per hundred pounds.

LAST WEEKS SALES

ON LOOSE LEAF MARKET

The six loose leaf tobacco warehouses in Owensboro sold last week 1,458,830 pounds of tobacco at an average price of $16.23 per hundred pounds.

Burley sales for the season have totaled 1,026,300 pounds at an average of $19.85.

Season's sale of pryor was 24,314,015 pounds, the average price of which was $16.57.

For the total season's sales, of burley and pryor, the growers have been paid $3,076,723.52.

Thirty thousand wives and widows of Canadian soldiers who married overseas, have gone to Canada who were never in the country before.

CIRCUIT COURT SUITS RECENTLY FILED HERE

No jury term of circuit court has been held for nearly a year, war farm work and the flu bans preventing, but the filing of suits goes merrily on. A large number of suits have been recently filed. Many of them are of no interest to the public, and we mention only those commonly regarded of news interest.

J. H. Miller, of near Duane, sues the Louisville & National Railroad Company and Walker D. Hines, Director General, in the sum of three thousand dollars for alleged damage to land, caused by the embankments of defendant's grades changing the natural course of the waters of Rough river.

Mrs. Sadie Phillips Tanner plays the court to divorce her from the bed and board of her husband, Ira Tanner. Mrs. Tanner avers she and the defendant were married in 1910 and separated on Washington's birthday 1915. She alleges desertion and non-support as grounds for divorce and asks for forty dollars a month alimony for the support of herself and three children.

William Hatler sues Joe Hatler to enforce a contract for land sold, for which neither deed nor payment was made, but which land, the plaintiff alleges, the defendant moved on and continues in possession of. The amount is $127.

MINED ON MAIL MATTERS.

An amusing error, of a boy mistaking a bank for the post office, occurred here a few days ago. A boy about twelve years old walked into one of the banks and threw a letter down on the cash plate. Accustomed to patrons sealing deposits in envelopes and sending them to the bank by a child, the Cashier very naturally assumed the envelope contained a deposit and tore it open. The boy, believing himself at the post office, and amazed at the envelope being broken, excitedly asked "what in the devil is the matter with it?" In the meantime the cashier, discovering what had happened, replied "Not a thing in the world, son, only this is a bank and not a postoffice."

OTPOSES ROAD TAX.

Centertown, Ky.
Feb. 10, 1919

Editor Republican,
Hartford, Ky.

Dear Sir:—Believing that the people should consider both sides of the question before voting to increase taxes, and knowing the fairness and liberality of your paper, I am asking you far space to state the reasons why I think the people should not vote the Road Tax. I want to say in the beginning that I shall not fall out with anyone who disagrees with me and shall only state the case as I see it. I am opposed to the tax for two reasons. First, because I don't believe the burdens of the people should be increased, and second, because of the increased valuation I don't think it necessary. Taking the assessment of the county for last year and this shows an increase of a little over 25 per cent for this year. The statement of the Commissioner shows that there was paid into the County Treasury last year, including Road Claims, the sum of $50,000. Taking the increased assessment of 25 per cent at the same rate there would be an increase of $12,500 in taxes. Quite a tidy sum. Then if the County would take the 8 or 10 thousand dollars spent for State aid each year together with the $4,000 paid for plowing on roads (most of which is wasted) we would have about $25,000 more to work with and would not need to increase the taxes for County purposes. 40 per cent which with the increase in assessment of 25 per cent would mean an increase in taxes of 75 per cent, for County purposes, which would be a burden to a great many people.

The question is, will the people vote it? I think not.

Respectfully
CLINTON S. ROWE.

POKER GAME TROUBLE

Marshall Lunkford, of Rockport, brought Ben Harris, of Echols, before Judge Cook Saturday afternoon, on a warrant charging him with the theft of $25 from Tom Wright. When brought before the court Harris claimed that while drunk he engaged in a poker game and lost $25, and that when he sobered up and missed his money he took about forty dollars that was lying around loose, took out the twenty-five he had lost and returned the remainder. He was held for examining trial, and being unable to give bond was lodged in jail. Harris appears to be above forty years old, and has a family. He is a miler, and works at Echols. Before being locked up Harris swore out warrants for Elwood Roan and Tom Wright, charging them with gambling. Harris also swore out a warrant for Elwood Roan charging him with selling whisky in prohibition territory.

BRECKINRIDGE AND OHIO COUNTY LINE IN DOUBT

There is a dispute of long standing between Ohio and Breckinridge counties in the matter of the line separating the two counties, at a point near Askin. County Attorney A. D. Kirk last week took up the matter with the Breckinridge county authorities and now seems to have the matter in course of adjustment. It is proposed that the county surveyors of the two counties, with two additional commissioners, one to be appointed by each county, make a survey of the line and finally establish it. Only an area of about a dozen farms is in the dispute.

ONLY ELEVEN APPEAR FOR THE EXAMINATION

The examination held for county school graduates, recently was attended by only eleven applicants. The flu epidemic has so completely disorganized the public schools that only a few pupils were prepared for the examination. The usual number of applicants is about seventy-five. All those appearing for the examination passed with the required grade. Those graduating were:

Bedford Robinson	75.2
Mary Baker	75.1
Mary Lucy Chick	79.4
Otha Burch	84.7
David Hunt	83.8
Basile Rowe	88.3
Annie Lee Bandy	81.5
Harland White	79.7
Lizzie Shrader	80.4
Iteba Bolln	78.6

ONE ON BROWDER.

County Farm Agent Browder and a number of Ohio county farmers went to Hopkinsville last week to look over some registered herds with a view to buying some breeding stock. One of the company, Mr. Albert Chinn, whose hair was a bit long and his face covered with a heavy beard, decided to spruce up a bit while in Hopkinsville, and after a barber had clipped his hair, shaved his face and neatly trimmed his mustache he presented quite a changed appearance. Noting the change in Mr. Chinn's appearance Mr. James Caldwell, approached Agent Browder, who was entertaining a group of friends in the hotel lobby, and introduced Mr. Chinn as Mr. Johnson, a Christian county stockman. Agent Browder expressed his very genuine pleasure at meeting Mr. Johnson and politely asked him to join the group, of which Mr. Browder was chief spokesman. Hopkinsville is a wet town, but we assume Browder did not do the right thing by the crowd or they would not have come home and peached on him.

GIRLS WHO ASSISTED LOCAL BOARD EXONERATED

My attention has just been called to an article appearing in the Hartford Herald of February 12th, with reference to the books of the Local Exemption Board. The writer of this article is mistaken or is in error when he alleges that the young people who so generously contributed their time and labor in assisting in the work of the Board caused the mistakes. The books which are incorrect were not kept by these young people at all, nor by the members of the Local Board, but by the clerk and his assistants and whatever mistakes appear in the books were caused by the negligence of the clerk and his assistants and not these young people who so kindly assisted us in the work.

PNEUMONIA VICTIM.

Homer, the sixteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alce Magan, died Saturday at his home near Magan. His remains were buried in Pleasant Hill burying grounds. Besides his parents, he is survived by two sisters and one brother. The entire family were afflicted with influenza, none of them being able to attend the burial.

VIOLENCE RELENTS

And Sympathy Moved, Condone The Sleeping Operator

If the party who asked us to cuss the Home Telephone Company for him could have been on court square at two o'clock Monday morning we should have delighted to gratify his lust for profanity and avarice for revenge.

It was at the dearest hour of the night—the hour when thieves sneak out to steal and ghosts walk—when sleep is the sweetest, that we were awakened and sent on an errand for a doctor for a very sick patient. To a midnighter-to-bed to be awakened at that hour would be little short of criminal for any lesser excuse than the calling a doctor for a patient violently ill. Anxious to relieve the patient and to return to bed, we thumped the door, stamped the porch and yelled until after we had awakened the entire neighborhood we aroused our neighbor, Tom Black, to use his phone to call the doctor. We rang, and rang until the mules in our right arm were sore, and then used the left. We also rang the "phone right and left, but never a "number please" came back over the wire. Exhausted in arms and patience, but with lower lips and resolute still in working order, we hiked down town for the doctor. But as doctors usually are when needed worst, this one was miles away. We returned to consult the patient about a substitute for the family doctor, and after getting the necessary directions, we awoke another neighborhood in arousing our good neighbor, Uncle Jim Bennett, to use his Cumberland. Starting the ringing and cussing process together—we cussed under our breath—our violence against all telephone companies was gathering impetus when after repeated rings a voice, pleadingly, plaintively and appealingly sleepy, softened our wrath and appeased our anger by putting a period to our troubles, and for once a soft answer turned away wrath, and we granted a pleanary pardon for all telephone grievances, past present and to come. I recalled the deadness of the hour and the soothing sweetness of the embrace of Morpheus' arms; I recollected the exclamation of Don Quixote's Squire, the most engaging rascal of the middle ages whose history has come down to us, "God bless the man who invented sleep." Pillowed on my couch, tranquil under the touch of returning drowsiness and mindful of the pathetic sleepiness of the voice at the switch, I highly resolved that henceforth if I must call a physician at two o'clock in the morning I would walk to Beaver Dam or Buckhorn for one before I would disturb the peaceful repose of the dear woman at the switchboard.

WHITESVILLE.

The public school is increasing rapidly, as several from Fordsville are attending here on account of the "flu" at that place.

Mrs. Victoria Taylor, of Owensboro, is visiting relatives at this place.

A large crowd attended the dance at Mr. Powers' Monday night and every one reported a good time.

Mr. Joe Howard, of Laffoon, who died from influenza, was brought to this place and buried a few days ago. On account of the "flu" only short services were held at St. Mary's cemetery.

Several new cases of the "flu" have developed at this place.

WORLD'S GREAT BURDEN OF DEBT

War Adds 167 Billions To Bonds Of Leading Nations.

Latest complications of the debts of leading nations, figured by the Mechanics and Metals National Bank of New York City, together with the debts before the war are shown here:

United States$ 1,000,000,000
Great Britain 3,500,000,000
France 6,500,000,000

German Em. & States 5,200,000,000
Austria-Hungary 3,700,000,000

Gross debt, all

January 1, 1919.

United States$ 21,000,000,000
Great Britain 40,000,000,000
France 30,000,000,000
Russia 27,000,000,000
Italy 12,000,000,000

Entente nations

Entente nations$130,000,000,000
Ger. Em. & States 40,000,000,000
Austria-Hungary 24,000,000,000
Neutral nations 64,000,000,000

Gross debt, all

The figures show that the increase since August, 1914, is 166,700 million dollars, which represents the actual debt contracted by these nations in consequence of the war. Debts of minor countries are not included. They amount to many hundred millions.

Vast as the above figures are, the debt obligations of the nations will not end even here. The compilation makes no allowance for obligations to be incurred for further military purposes, for the demobilizing of armies, and for pensioning them. Nor does it allow for the restoration and replenishment expenditures that will impose upon the nations the duty to incur further loans.

There will be, beside the expense of demobilizing the armies, the work of rebuilding and restoring, of boursing on an unparalleled scale and of road-making. There will be the imperative need of agricultural development, shipbuilding and improvement of transportation, to say nothing of schemes of economic and social reform that are regarded as absolutely essential to future national efficiency.

The bank maintains, in drawing conclusions from the figures of the war debts, that none of the large nations will default its war bonds, nor seek to cancel them by any outright confiscation of wealth.

"The moral obliquity and financial chaos attending deliberate repudiation of war debts," the bank says, "would be greater than any of the nations could bear." During the reconstruction period the nations will be zealous to restore their prestige and return to normal business pursuits with their reputation and financial standing firmly established among the people of the world. To insure this, first and foremost will be the need that their credit shall remain unquestioned. Russia offers a present-day example of a nation that has lost position and confidence through the endeavor of a de facto government to avoid meeting its just obligations. Governments in the past have gone out of existence, yet history shows how often the people of these nations nevertheless acknowledged and met the debts contracted in their names, rather than leave the sacredness of their word dishonored and their credit destroyed.

The band width that increasing wealth of nations, combined with carefully drawn tax plans, will eventually bring about the wiping out of the war debts. It shows that in the century following the battle of Waterloo the British nation gained vastly in prosperity, although its debt was larger than ever before. In similar fashion it is shown how the wealth of France increased in face of war. Notwithstanding the blows to her prosperity dealt by the revolution of 1789, the Napoleonic period, the revolution of 1848 and the Prussian war of 1870, industry and accumulation went on in France, so much so that compared with 1789 the wealth of France up to the opening of the great war had increased more than eightfold.

The determining factor of the whole matter in the future," the bank concludes, "will after all, lie not so much in the bulk of indebtedness as in the productive power of the people who support that indebtedness. Depending upon the wealth production of the people, the support of war debts will be governed accordingly, and debts will be wiped out not by any repudiation or conscription, but by encouraging industry, trade, commerce and economic activity of every kind."

GERMANY IS BANKRUPT AND PEOPLE STARVING

Paris, Wednesday, Feb. 5.—Germany is pictured as a land of graveyards by Lieut. Col. Searl Harris, of the United States Medical Reserve Corps, who has just returned to Paris after having investigated conditions east of the Rhine. He says that the German nation is bankrupt, the people are actually starving, and that "probably no one will ever know the number of casualties suffered by Germany during the war."

"There are no eggs, no milk and only half a pound of beet sugar for each person a month," he says in giving details of the situation. "Shop girls have lost from ten to forty-five pounds in weight, while everyone shows a lack of vitality. I found children going to school shod with paper sandals or with cloth shoes to which wooden soles had been attached."

"No one knows the composition of the black, gritty bread that is being issued in limited quantities by ticket. Tuberculosis is increasing and skin diseases, due to lack of nourishment and lack of soap, are prevalent. One beneficial result of the low diet which has been forced upon the German people is found in the fact that it has helped many who were overeaters. Bright's disease has decreased and diabetes has disappeared. There is no more gout in Germany, but, on the other hand, intestinal diseases have greatly increased. These are attributed to coarse bread. Beer that is being sold has no substance."

Conditions which he had found in Germany have led Lieut. Col. Harris to the opinion, he says, that many women and children will die or become defective if not supplied with food.

"The Germans who overran France," he says, "should be punished and permitted to starve, but not the women and children. Hungry men and women do not make good neighbors."

CHEAPER WHEAT FOR 1919 NOW INDICATED

Washington, Feb. 6.—While the farmer would be paid $2.25 government guarantee for the 1919 wheat crop, the wheat would be sold to the consumer at a price to be dictated by the law of supply and demand under legislation approved tonight by the House agriculture committee. The government would lose the difference between the purchase and sale prices.

With the government given absolute control of the wheat market in the United States, members of the committee said, it would be difficult to determine what would be the price if the usual law of supply and demand were in operation, but they thought it would be based largely upon the world market price. Some witnesses who have testified at hearings before the committee have predicted a world price of $1.25 a bushel.

On the basis of such a price the government would stand a loss of about $1 a bushel, but committee members would not venture a prediction as to what the total loss might be, as forecasts of the 1919 crop depend upon many factors. The crop is estimated now at about 1,000,000,000 bushels.

The bill approved by the committee is a substitute for that presented by the food administration and Department of Agriculture. It gives the president discretion powers to continue the present agency for handling the wheat crop or create a new one, and appropriates $1,000,000,000 as a revolving fund to carry out the guarantee.

Members of the committee believe that a regulatory body similar to the food administration and a commercial agency like the United States Grain Corporation will be necessary to enable the government to take over and dispose of the crop.

Licensing system similar to that now in effect, placing all agencies handling wheat under government control, is authorized by the bill, and whatever agency the president may establish will be given broad powers in handling the crop and controlling exports of wheat.

SEATTLE PARALYZED BY GENERAL STRIKE

Over 45,000 Men Walk Out In a Sympathetic Strike.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 6.—United States troops from Camp Lewis are quartered tonight in Seattle and Tacoma to "stand ready for any emergency," as army officers said today, resulting from the general strike this morning of 45,000 shipyard workers who walked out Jan. 21 to enforce demands for increased pay.

Major John L. Hayden commands the contingent of 800 soldiers in Seattle, and Gen. Frank B. Watson has under him in Tacoma, 36 miles from here, two battalions and a machine gun company. Equipment of the soldiers included 200 hand grenades, Maj. John M. Thompson of the Camp Lewis intelligence department said.

Authority for the use of troops was granted by secretary of War Baker, upon advice from Gov. Ernest Lister of the situation in Tacoma and Seattle.

Thirty-five thousand union men in the vicinity of Seattle quit work today, labor leaders said, but in Tacoma response was not so general, and the principal unions involved there were car men, timber workers, barbers and retail clerks.

Street cars stopped running in Seattle, schools closed, restaurants and theaters closed their doors, newspapers suspended and other industries ceased operating. Twelve "soup kitchens" were established by culinary unions to feed strikers and others who depend upon restaurants for meals. Patrons of the kitchens were lined up and served in military "mess" fashion. Barber shops closed and elevators stopped running.

Only emergency telegraph business from Seattle was handled by the telegraph companies. The telephone system continued in service.

No disorder has resulted from the strike, Mayor Ole Hanson of Seattle said. No disorder has been reported from Tacoma.

Mayor Hanson said the troops probably would be assigned to co-operate with the police in keeping order and in guarding public utilities.

"Seattle is not under martial law, nor will it be placed under martial law," Mayor Hanson said.

Municipal street cars will be operated on the city lines as soon as Chief of Police J. P. Warren can provide police to go out with every car. It was announced by Superintendent Murphy, of the municipal lines.

Seattle was lighted by electricity early tonight, the fireman and engineers at the municipal light plant having refused to obey their union's order that they strike.

Seattle police said they were ready for any emergency. A big truck carrying a machine gun and with sandbags built up around its edges stands at the police station. Three former army lieutenants have been assigned to the truck.

Motorcycle police were instructed to watch sharply for offenders who might possibly spread tacks on the streets to puncture automobile tires. For several days stories of enormous sales of tacks for this purpose have been circulated here.

A statement issued by the strike committee of the Central Labor Council, which is directing the strike, said the walkout was a success. All lines of industry in which union workers were employed were crippled, the statement said.

THEY SHY AT FAULTS.

One of our readers writes saying: "Here is a question that often comes up and, although you might think it silly, I argue with my friends about it every now and then: After eating a pound of meat, etc., at dinner, does a person weigh any more than before?"

This is one of the questions that will never stay answered. It isn't exactly silly or it would not keep bobbing up in this way forever. Of course there is but one answer to it: the weight of the meal is bound to increase the weight of the person who eats it.

But there are lots of people who think otherwise and argue otherwise. They will not take the trouble to satisfy themselves of the actual fact by trying it, but they continue to try to settle it by sophistry.

Another classic question of this sort is whether a live fish placed in a pale of water will increase the weight of the whole. Of course it will; otherwise the weight of the fish would cease to exist and we would

Tired Nervous Mothers

Should Profit by the Experience of These Two Women

Buffalo, N. Y.—"I am the mother of four children, and for nearly three years I suffered from a female trouble with pains in my back and side, and a general weakness. I had professional attendance most of that time but did not seem to get well. As a last resort I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which I had seen advertised in the newspapers, and in two weeks noticed a marked improvement. I continued its use and am now free from pain and able to do all my household work."—Mrs. B. B. ZIELINSKA, 202 Weiss Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Portland, Ind.—"I had a displacement and suffered so badly from it at times I could not be on my feet at all. I was all run down and so weak I could not do my housework, was nervous and could not sleep at night. I took treatments from a physician but they did not help me. My Aunt recommended Lydia E. have a proof of the annihilation of the matter.

It is a singular trait of the human animal—this one of preferring to argue things rather than test them. If any man can prove by actual demonstration that a live fish dropped into a pall of water would not increase the weight, he would win everlasting fame, for he would establish a principle which is against all science and all experience, and he would open up a vast new world of discovery.

But the champions of such theories will not adopt the simple process of testing their claims; they will argue with everyone they meet and they are delighted if they can prompt their victims to go to the trouble and expense of writing to some newspaper for an answer. Even when the answer is given, however, it doesn't settle the controversy; the question constantly takes new life, like the phoenix bird which burnt up and would then be born again out of its own ashes.

It would be of small account if this habit of humanity only went as far as asking questions like these, but the same habits are found permeating every department of life from the lowest to the highest. People will argue and contend and fight over issues that they could easily settle, once for all, if they would only take the trouble to meet on common ground and submit their opposing views to the acid tests of facts and reason.

Francis Bacon revolutionized human thought when he taught people to stop arguing and go to nature for their knowledge. Even when he was only 16 years old he saw the fallacy of the old philosophies, which, as he said, were calculated more to perpetuate controversies than to enlighten the mind.

Dreadful Cough Cured.

A severe cough is often followed by a rough cough for which Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has proven especially valuable. Mrs. F. W. Olsen, Marysville, Mo., writes: "About two years ago my little boy, Jean, caught a severe cold and coughed dreadfully for days. I tried a number of cough medicines but nothing did him any good until I gave him Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It relieved his cough right away, and before he had finished taking one bottle he was cured. I think it just fine for little children."

MAY STRIKE FOR BEER

Newark, N. J., Feb. 6.—A "no beer, no work" slogan was announced today by representatives of 30,000 building trade workers, who condemned nation wide prohibition and voted to ask the Essex Trade Council, comprising many thousands of union men in Newark and vicinity, to start a movement for a strike throughout the state July 1, when the temporary war-time prohibition law becomes effective. The delegates favored manufacture and sale of light wines and beers.

PLANT TREES FOR FALLEN SOLDIERS

We very much like the plan now being discussed of planting a tree for every fallen soldier. Trees are among the best monuments and are likely to outlast even marble shafts. The difficulty, of course, is with the inscription, which can not be well placed indelibly upon a tree. But a permanent record can be kept of the soldier for whom the tree is planted and the renewal of the inscription be made a part of the Memorial Day exercises each year.

We can think of no memorial which would be more acceptable to our heroes dead were they able to indicate their choice, than a tree under whose shade in after years the weary passer-by might rest and perchance eat of the nuts or fruit as he read the inscription and recalled the deliverance of this country and of the world from the calamity which threatened us in 1914-18. Trees will literally keep green the memory of our fallen heroes.

FINDS HONEST PEDAGOGUE, SO SUFFERS FROM SHOCK

Wenatchee, Wash., Feb. 8.—Madge Cushing, a chief deputy auditor here, is trying to recover from the shock she received recently when she opened a letter from A. G. Howie had returned the warrant for his salary with the statement that he would not accept pay for the three weeks his school was closed on account of the influenza epidemic.

THE ISSUE SUBMITTED SHALL WE HAVE BETTER ROADS?

This question is now put squarely up to the people of Ohio county to be decided by election March 8, 1919.

Serious consideration should be given the matter of working the roads of Ohio county. There is only one sure and certain way of getting better roads and that is by putting up the money for them. Other counties get them that way, but in no other way.

The present road tax to be voted on is only TWENTY CENTS on the HUNDRED DOLLARS and will relieve three thousand or more road hands from so much work right in the busy season. It will supplement the present road fund to the extent of just about doubling it. It will put our roads in good condition all over the county and will keep them that way by the use of good tools, implements and machinery so placed and used in each community as to get good results.

The tax is small and is paid in just the same manner and at the same time other taxes are paid, and it only lasts five years. Under the law, and by orders of the Fiscal Court EACH MAGISTERIAL DISTRICT AND EVERY ROAD IN THE COUNTY WILL RECEIVE ITS SHARE OF THE TAXES AND ROAD FUNDS.

No one man will control this money, but the best brains of the county will be called upon to apply the funds fairly and equitably in every community. The Banks, Railroads, Coal Mines, Corporations and Town Property will pay more than half of the taxes. All these concerns profit by good roads.

The tax asked for will be sufficient to widen the roads, cut many of the hills, and grade others, put the roadbeds upon better ground, crown the roads well and keep them dragged and drained, and thereby make them far more convenient, safer and better for travel. The roads are put to much greater and heavier uses now than in former years. Old methods simply fail to meet the requirements. Proper methods of road work have to be paid for.

Truly an emergency exists that ought to lead you to vote "YES" on the road tax question. We mean nothing but business and an absolutely square deal to the people of the county in the matter of keeping up a good road system for every community.

We expect, by calling upon the brains, the good sense and sound judgment of thinking men all over the county to establish a system of roads that will put the products and resources of Ohio county in position to be marketed with convenience and dispatch and at reasonable cost. This is a fair, square proposition of development and betterment.

We respectfully submit it for your favor.

BELGIUM WANTS INDEMNITY NOW

Peace Representative Says Urgent Part Of Claims Should Be Paid

Paris, Feb. 7.—The financial claims of Belgium against Germany are most urgent, Baron van Den Heuvel, a member of the Belgian Peace delegation and of the Peace Conference Committee on Reparations said today.

Belgium, he declared, does not have time to wait for an agreement to be reached as for the exact figures of the indemnity which is due her before obtaining at least partial reparation. The Baron said that a percentage of the indemnity should be paid immediately.

Belgium, he added, needs food and machinery at once. Her working men are idle; her industries are at a standstill or working at a loss, and her foreign trade will go to other markets unless something is done without delay.

Heavy Losses Suffered.

Baron van Den Heuvel said it would take much time to reckon the exact figures of Belgium's losses through military operations, occupation and enemy requisitions. The amount of damages is varied. The Government, cities, towns, villages and private citizens have suffered heavy losses. The Belgian Government alone spent three billion francs for carrying on the war and more than two billion francs for feeding the populations in occupied territory.

Forced war contributions exacted from the provincial governments during more than four years aggregated from 50,000,000 to 70,000,000 francs a month, the Baron said. Private citizens have been despoiled of their copper and other valuables and sufferings through unemployment have been accentuated by the high cost of living. More than 50,000 houses in Belgium have been destroyed.

Seized Raw Materials.

In an effort to ruin Belgium competition after the war, the Baron continued, Germany seized all raw materials and the greater part of the machinery and electrical installations in the iron, steel and manufacturing plants. The Cockerell steel plant, for instance, which employed nearly 12,000 workmen before the war, has been stripped of all machinery and rendered useless. Out of the 3,200 breweries in Belgium, 2,800 have been robbed of their copper material of all kinds.

FIXED WHEAT PRICE WORRYING CONGRESS

Dealers Millers And Exporters Discuss Situation

Washington, Feb. 4.—Grain dealers, exporters and millers today presented to the House of Agriculture Committee varied suggestions for methods of carrying out the government's guarantee to producers of $2.26 a bushel for the 1919 wheat crop. All agreed that the true market price, as determined by the world conditions, would drop below the guaranteed rate and that the government should make good the difference directly rather than by maintaining artificially the higher price.

The witnesses also agreed that the existing United States Grain Corporation, or some similar body, should be maintained by the government's agency for supporting the price to growers. They differed as to methods to be prescribed by legislation, which the committee is preparing to draft.

Should Buy Grain

The grain dealers proposed that the corporation actually buy the grain at $2.26, sell it to millers or other consumers at a price dictated by world markets and acquire the country's surplus for export. The exporters suggested that the corporation's functions be limited to paying farmers the difference between the government price and the market price at which the grain was sold, without actually taking possession, and consequently without piling up a great quantity for export.

The millers were interested mainly in having the corporation given authority to protect millers against losses growing out of the falling of the wheat price from the present artificial level to the true world price, and the fluctuations in the world price before it becomes stable under the corporation's administration.

Representatives of the respective interests appearing before the committee today did not agree wholly among themselves over many details of their proposed plans.

Would Continue Functions.

In the main, however, the grain dealers advocated that the grain corporation continue to function much as it has done in the past. Thus the dealers would collect grain from farmers, paying the guaranteed price, with a small deduction for commission, and turn over the grain to the grain corporation at the guaranteed price. The corporation then would sell it at the price it judges to represent the world price, determined by international competition, and export the surplus. Spokesmen were reluctant to predict what the world price, or the true market price, would be.

Other suggestions of the dealers were that the government should not acquire storage warehouses or mills in anticipation of an emergency caused by flooding the market after next summer's harvest, and that the grain corporation should not be called on to handle other grains than wheat.

Millers Ask Protection.

The millers asked protection against the expected decline from the present artificial level to the open market prices. It was explained, only to keep the usual quantity of flour in transit to consumption points, necessary to maintain a steady supply. An accounting would be maintained with the grain corporation, by which the corporation would pay the difference between the wheat price on the day when flour was shipped and a lower price on the day when the flour was delivered.

13 Dollars— 13 Cents

When Swift & Company paid, say,—13 dollars per hundredweight for live beef cattle last year, the profit was only 13 cents! In other words, if we had paid $13.13, we would have made no profit.

Or, if we had received a quarter of a cent per pound less for dressed beef we would have made no profit.

It is doubtful whether any other business is run on so close a margin of profit.

This is bringing the producer and the consumer pretty close together—which should be the object of any industry turning raw material into a useful form.

This remarkable showing is due to enormous volume, perfected facilities (packing plants strategically located, branch houses, refrigerator cars, etc.), and an army of men and women chosen and trained to do their special work.

This, and many other points of interest, are found in the Swift & Company Year Book for 1919, just published which is brought out for the public as well as for the 25,000 Swift & Company shareholders.

The Year Book also represents the packer's side of the Federal Trade Commission investigation, upon which Congress is asked to base action against the industry.

Many who have never heard the packer's side are sending for the Year Book.

BILLINGS-GATE IS HURLED AT WILSON

Senator Sherman Indulges In Exposure Of The President

Washington, Feb. 5.—Senator Sherman, of Illinois, Republican, delivered an address in the Senate Tuesday, assailing President Wilson and his administration. He took the subject, "Supreme government and Self-government," and asserted that the President was supreme by virtue of usurping authority.

Much of the speech was devoted to an attack upon Henry Ford, who, Senator Sherman said, was "an alleged superman" because he invented an internal combustion engine.

"The United States," said Senator Sherman, "is no longer a Republic of self-governed people. It is the rule now of the alleged superman at the head of a group or class aggregation seeking their own advantage. Neither is it a government of law. It is a rule of some men, selfish greedy, ambitious, impractical and dreaming. Others build a class despotism founded on spoliation and pillage unrebuked in public places."

Declaring that the nation "hovers on the borderland between peace and war," and pointing out that Americans are fighting and enduring hardships in many climes, Senator Sherman continued:

"While they risk their lives and endure hardships in alien lands our President spends nine weeks in ceremony, banquets and visiting with kings, the powerful of the earth, in endless stately palaver. It is the old story of magnificence and misery, of splendor and suffering, of selfishness and sacrifice. While he coins new phrases and chases infinite abstractions into the empyrean heights of impossible human yearnings, the American nation drifts. We drift in Russia. We drift in Mexico. We drift on the bank of war and peace. We drift on industrial reconstruction. We drift on domestic policies and internal peace. The only definite goal is profligate expenditure and huge taxes.

"Nothing but the grossest of egotism took him to the peace conference, where no executive of any other civilized power sits. He cannot resist the lure of the limelight. The groups to which he panders applaud, and the average man looks on in silent but with undisguised disgust."

SCIENTIFIC NOTES.

New Altitude Record. A British aviator a short time ago flew to a height of 30,500 feet in a British airplane, establishing a new altitude record. The pilot and the observer were both frostbitten and the observer collapsed as a result of his oxygen bottle breaking. Neither suffered any permanent injury, however. The highest point previously attained was 28,900 feet. This record was made by an American pilot of the Wilbur Wright aviation field last September.

May Salvage Potatoes. Tests made in laboratories of the U. S. department of agriculture have disclosed the fact that most of the starch can be recovered from rotten or frozen potatoes, hitherto regarded as wholly worthless; the decay-producing fungi and the freezing apparently do not affect the starch deleteriously. Specialists of the department suggest that the great stocks of spoiled tubers now rejected and dumped in the big markets should be salvaged for the starch that may be obtained from them.

Owing to the hostility of the French Press there is a probability of the peace conference being moved from France to some neutral territory.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 14

It appears that the government ownership policy may be the undoing of McAdoo.

If the Society of Nations works well the Government may get all the casualty list of the present war published before the next one begins.

The Butler county fiscal court has ordered a road tax election for March 15, just a week after ours is to be held. Let us set our Butler neighbors a good example by voting the tax.

A news dispatch from Russia says Archangel has fallen. We had thought if there were any angels in that Bolshevik ridden country they had fallen a long time ago.

"Uncle Bill" Schooler, editor of the Somerset Commonwealth, acknowledges the gift of a bible. "Uncle Bill" does not state what particular missionary society the donor was representing.

The traditional love of this country for France was stronger as a tradition than by personal intercourse, according to reports of our soldier boys of their experience in that country.

A press report of a battle with the Bolsheviks in Russia says five American soldiers were killed. We are not at war with Russia and why this sacrifice of American lives? Perhaps there is a reason, but we should like to know it.

Remember the road tax election March 8. Read carefully the fiscal court order, elsewhere in this issue, and if there is anything further you want to know about it ask the county judge, county attorney, or some other member of the fiscal court.

Hancock county is going to hold a road tax election March 15. The good roads rival is spreading like wild fire. The reap hook and wooden mould board plan of working roads is too ancient and ineffective.
Let us abolish it, and establish modern methods of road building.

A Society of Nations wisely organized should contribute toward a pacific settlement of the difficulties between nations, but the fact must not be lost sight of that national differences, as personal ones, must, under breaking pressure, be settled by rule of strength rather than by rule of justice.

If Kentucky must keep A. O. Stanley in office it were decidedly better to have him in the United States senate, where he will be small potatoes and few in the hill, than to have him invested as governor with the power to pardon an army of criminals out of the penitentiary to prey upon the peaceful and law-abiding citizens of the commonwealth.

At a time when the government and public generally are trying to devise means to find employment for our returning soldiers the work to be afforded on public roads, if the tax is voted, is a factor worthy of consideration. The money collected in each magisterial district will all be spent in the district where collected and will furnish much employment for labor.

Someone has suggested that somebody that loved a soldier who died
"overthere" plant a tree to perpetuate his memory. No more appealing suggestion has been made, and we hope that some loving hand will plant an elm or an oak sacred to the memory of some soldier friend who died for his country in a far away land. The hand that plants the memory tree may not indeed live to see it mature, but no community of patriots will ever suffer the soldier's name to be forgotten while the tree stands a solemn monument to the honored dead.

With the sitting of the new Congress the country may expect to be amazed by the exposure of the extravagance and waste in the use of the public money by the government during the past two years. While the country was imperiled the people stood for whatever orders came out of Washington but with the advent of peace will be interested in stock taking to see how far we are from national bankruptcy.
Liberty bonds are now selling around four per cent discount, with another six billion loan to be floated in the spring. The Democratic party is long on theory but in practice it has been always a poor financier.

The Saturday Evening Post and the Louisville Courier Journal will begin March 2, concurrently, the serial publication of the "Memoirs of Marse Henry." There is a pathetic touch in the title. It is too suggestive of the approach of the period of the life work of the great Kentucky editor. Henry Watterson is the last of the old school of Kings of the quill. He was not, indeed, always right nor always agreeable, but always versatile, always honest and always fearless, the trinity of virtues that makes an editor loved by the upright, hated by the hypocrits and feared by the rascals. At a time when democracy has risen to the flood and is overflowing its banks, and mankind is breaking loose from the restraints and customs of ages to see visions and dream dreams of loose order and easy wealth, it is regrettable to see so wise a counselor, and so fearless and advocate of social order, turning into the last year of his fourth score. We join a host of his countrymen in wishing for two veteran editor yet a long and useful lease of life.

A friend asked us yesterday why we did not keep our readers posted on the progress of the peace conference. We told him as a first reason that, so far as we could see it wasn't making any progress. There is a great deal of talk about a Society of Nations, whatever that may mean, but if anything really definite has been done toward laying the plank for the Huns to walk we have seen no account of it. So far it has not been even determined just what nations may have representatives at the conference, and we can hardly expect the trial to begin until the jury box is filled. So many nations with such varied interests are pressing to be heard that little definite action may be expected for some weeks to come.
The President's fourteen points seem to have been lost in the shuffle, and all we hear of them now is when the Germans insist upon their adoption.
It appears the fourteen points appeal much more strongly to the German notion of peace terms than to England, France and Italy. The most conclusive development is that England is letting Wilson and Clemenceau do the talking and that Lloyd George will do most of the writing.

The petticoat vote by national constitutional amendment was defeated by only two votes in the United States Senate Monday. Thus ends the suffrage campaign for the present congress. The Republicans will control the next congress, and as in recent years they are out-herding Herod in bloomin' reforms, it is highly probable they will submit the amendment.
The question of female suffrage pursues a strange course in these United States. There is nowhere a popular demand for it, the fact is notorious that fully ninety per cent of the women of the country do not want it, and yet its eventual adoption is about as certain as any future event can be.
Twenty years ago Populism began experimenting by sowing new and untried seed for the propagation of experimental and visionary legislation in the western states, and in order to multiply the advocates of their novelties included female suffrage in their program. Having put it over the plate in a number of states west of the Mississippi river, and invested a few million female voters with a voice in the electoral college the politicians, usually cringing and cowardly, suddenly discovered a mares' nest in a great popular uprising for universal suffrage. The adoption of woman suffrage will present the strange spectacle of forcing an imaginary privilege upon many millions of citizens who have not asked for it and do not want it.

Mr. Clinton Rowe, of Centertown, in a letter appearing elsewhere in this paper, states his objections to voting the road tax. His first objection is an age-old one; he opposes adding to the burdens of the people.
Mr. Rowe's error is in assuming it will be an added burden. It will not be a burden, but an investment, paying several hundred per cent. The modern binder added immensely to the farmers expenditures over the trifling price of a reap hook, but the "burden" added billions of wealth to agriculture. The tractor plow costs the farmer many times the price of the wooden mouldboard, but makes him many times richer, and a trifling addition to the tax now paid will repay many fold, not only in the reduced cost of transportation of the farmer's products over the public highways, but in the convenience and comfort of travel. Mr. Rowe's second objection is founded upon a misconception of the amount of money necessary to condition the roads of the county. It is perhaps true that the ordinary county revenue for road purposes would, after the roads have been widened, drained, grades cut and etc., be sufficient to keep them in a fair state of repair, but it is entirely inadequate to accomplish the purpose mentioned. The matter of twenty cents on the one hundred dollars worth of property could scarcely be magnified to a "burden," and it happens that the largest taxpayers in the county are the most vigorous advocates of the road tax.

STRAY STREAKS

(By Fluke McFluke.)

We saw an old rounder very early the other morning carrying a yellow and apparently, much used shoe box under one arm, and as we passed him we remarked, "Brother, your box is leaking." The first thing he said, was, "durn that stopper." I suggested that he come into our office to fix it, but he wouldn't, or at least he didn't.

Lee Shimmerman says, as how, it used to be an invariable rule for people to place coins upon the eyes of their dear departed ones, while lying a corpse, but somehow or other a corpse don't have much luck in keeping in-God-we-trust on their lids now-a-days, and the practice has been well nigh broken up since Ernest Birkhead got to be an undertaker.

Alvah Palmer, carrier on Route 1,
McHenry; Jim Park, Ed Davidson,
Karl Anderson and Frank Lowe, were all invited out to a big 6 o'clock dinner one day last week and you may not believe it, but nearly all of the boys were able to be out on their routes on the second and third day after gathering in the swell eats.

Our old friend, Joe Eskridge, of Fordsville, while in town the other day, dropped into this office and from here called up his wife, Mrs. Esk-ridge on learning that Joe was in this joint, ordered and directed that he not come home without renewing her subscription to this sheet. Thus, Joe grew poorer by $1.50, and Thomas being in Louisville, I am better off by 12 bits.

While I have been trying to grind out a bit of stuff for the old sheet John Henry has filled himself to the utmost with the good things from the Lincoln Banquet at the Seelbach, and at this hour he sitteth under the shadow of greatness, as 'twere, perhaps with both feet upon the now, empty table. Yes, I can see him with my mind's eye enshrouded in smoke from the richest, the mellowest and alluring Havanas, with a happy and ravishing smile beaming from his countenance, due to present contentment, a sort of halo reflected from his dignified brow and hoary locks, where, very late in the morning, only steaming cloths and bandages may be found. It's a funny old world isn't it? Tonight I envy John, tomorrow I may feel much better than he, and, by the latter thought I am consoled.

Let the "Cleveland" help you increase profits!

THE Cleveland tractor is showing thousands of farmers the way to greater profits from their farms. It means quicker work —better work—and at a lower cost.
Saves men, teams—gets the crops in on time—gets them harvested and to market at the best time to sell.

It will pull a two-bottom plow—and turn over 8 to 10 acres a day in medium soil. It will pull a harrow, a pulverizer, seeder or harvester. It will furnish power for any ordinary farm machinery.

Use it with Oliver Plows—

Hitch your Cleveland tractor to an Oliver plow and watch the good work! The Oliver is designed for this particular work—will stand the excessive strains of tractor service. The combined rolling coulter and jointer buries all trash and weeds at the bottom of the furrow.

The stop device maintains an even depth of furrow. The trip rope control enables the driver to operate the plow from his seat on the tractor. The plow points enter and leave the ground first, insuring a good clean furrow clear to the end of the field.

Let us show you the Cleveland tractor and Oliver plows here at our salesroom.

BEADS ODDLY STRUNG

(By I. D. Claire.)

A couple of Hartford girls has ast me to advertise for husbands for them. They are reasonably good looking, fairly industrious and very anxious to get married. They said for me to pay no attention to the applications of Mack Fogle and Ad Howard.

"Old Timer" is being called on to go hither and yon to water witch for folks wantin' to dig wells. It pays to advertise.

The flu didn't last long in Hartford, but it gave a lot of prohibitionists an excuse to stock up with whisky.

Tinsley is a genius when it comes to meetin' genuine difficulties. Me and Doc Riley couldn't imagine how to manage it after the first of July, but this came to our rescue. He wasn't doin' it all just because he liked me and Doc, but he is in the same boat. This proposed that he move out on my little farm, keep four vicious bull dogs and have Doc report that he has leprosy, to keep people from discoverin' his still. Doc will have to go out and treat him for the leprosy and can bring my shear in. Cal Keown has a boss and wagon and he's agreed to haul Doc and the liquor back and forth free. This is a mighty good friend to have in a pinch.

"Old Timer" demands that I apologize for sayin' he used a forked peach tree limb for findin' water. He says he used a straight stick, and that a buggy whip would do just as well, and durned if I don't believe he is right about that part of it. He says that the science of water witchin', like all other sciences, is advanced, and that it is only the old fashioned charlatans who use a forked stick now.

Keeping Hogs Healthy.

One of the measures that goes far to protect hogs from diseases consists in giving them new ground to work over each year. Disease germs are less likely to be found on new ground than on ground that has been given up to the hogs year after year. This applies to the yards adjoining the pens as much as to the large fields. The use of small movable houses greatly facilitates a rotation of hog yards. The portable buildings are quickly moved from place to place, and thus it is possible to keep the hogs, pigs and fattening hogs on land that is surely not contaminated by disease.

With the movable hog houses it is possible to adopt another protective measure, which is the division of the herd. The hogs being in small groups in separate yards or fields, the coming of a cholera epidemic, for example, is not likely to be so disastrous as it otherwise would be. A disease may break out in one place and the remainder of the hogs on the farm may not be affected at all. On the other hand, if they are bunched in small yards and disease should break out, in many instances the entire drove will be affected with it.

In introducing new stock into a drove, the greatest precaution possible should be taken, else the disease may be brought in this way. No animal should come upon any farm without being thoroughly disinfected and then quarantined for two or three weeks before being allowed near the rest of the animals. The hog in question may have come from a healthy drove, but while being shipped over some railroad may have been exposed to cholera and so contracted the disease.

On every farm there should be made some provision for dipping hogs. This not only proves to be an easy and effectual method of disinfecting animals which are being brought upon the farm, but it also furnishes a good way for disposing of lice. There are very few droves of swine that are not afflicted at some time or other by lice. While this trouble may usually be overcome by spraying or sprinkling the animals with dip, the lice commonly are most numerous on the head close to the ears, under the forelegs, and in other secluded places where the dip can not conveniently be sprinkled or sprayed. But when the animals are put through a dipping tank they will be free from all vermin, for a time at least. The hog owners may also be used to keep down the lice.—W. F. P.

The Skunk.

The skunk has long hair, a very bushy tail, a patch of white on the back, also white on the forehead. In many localities this animal is known as a pole-cat. In others he is called a skunk, or "chicken thief."

During severe winter weather the skunk hibernates in burrows near the frost line. It is not uncommon to find 10 or 12 skunks sleeping in the same habitation. At first approach of spring, he comes forth and begins search for food, which consists of mice, rabbits, birds and chickens. When the ground thaws he digs holes in the sides of the hills or about the roots of trees; in search of insect life. Skunks also eat bird eggs, grasshoppers, beetles, in fact any insect.

The skunk does not emit odor unless he is attacked. Dogs will seldom engage in a fight with an adult skunk, especially if they have had one encounter. The skunk has two cousins, the mink and the weasel, which are much more active and blood-thirsty. In times of danger the skunk will stand still or take his time to get away.

Skunks are really benefactors rather than pests. Their destruction of mice and all kinds of insect life considerably overbalances the harm they might do by destruction of poultry or birds. Their fur is a great asset; quite frequently we find men raising these "night cats" for the fur they produce.—Edgar S. Jones.

'Twas Ever Thus.

Old Sam Wombas came over to borrow four harrow teeth to put in the harrow that he left standing in the fence corner last spring. Said he guessed they fell out and got lost. Said 'twas a lot of bother to hunt around to try to find them in his big wagon shed and he knew I always could find things easier than he could on account of having a roof over my shed, where his did not have any. Said he was going to build a shed last fall but had no room to put one, as all the empty places were about filled up with tools that he had bought to shift along with till he could afford to buy new ones, as the new ones cost too much money, and the paint came off in a year or so anyhow and then they were no better than the second hand tools. Said so many buildings on a farm took up a lot of ground that was needed for farming and pasture for chickens, ducks and geese, and a place to throw the old trash that you might need some time. Said as how n shed was awful handy as the last tool you used this year, was the last one for next year, and it was an awful job to get the one out you wanted. His wife says it will be awful handy when Sam dies and she has to have a sale, as the tools are all out in the open and ready for the auctioneer and the crowd—Silas of Nararre.

Our Farm Notebook.

Apply the stable manure to the garden now for best results.

Clean out the briars and bushes from every roadside, fence, and ditch bank.

Remember that the garden is not complete without hotbeds and cold frames.

Begin advertising the plants and seeds you have for sale. You will get more profit by advertising and will do some man a favor who is on the lookout for good seeds.

It will be well to pay close attention to feeding the work stock, for the heavy farm work will soon begin and they should be in good condition.

Better get up your order for needed repairs on old implements right away. If the matter is put off, the work of planting, harvesting, or cultivating may be greatly delayed.

Plan to use a row-at-a-time cultivator this year. With the present necessity of speeding up production, it is simply foolish to waste the labor of one man by using two-half-row cultivators where one would serve. It is a noticeable fact that very few home orchards have been pruned up to this time. No time should be lost in getting at this, or it is likely to be neglected in the rush of spring work.

When fruit trees are planted, the labels, held in place by a wire, should be removed. The only safe way to keep track of varieties is to make and file away a plan of the orchard which will show what kind of trees are set in each place.

If you need a bigger garden, move the fence and make the enlargement now. Don't wait for spring. And in this connection, remember that long rows, even if you have to make the garden narrow, will mean easier cultivation, because horse implements can be employed. Make the gate large enough to admit a wagon for hauling manure.

Keep the plow going on land that must be broken. The teams will stand the hard work much better these cold days than they will when hot spring days come. Then, too, these plowing jobs will be out of the way of planting and the turning under of cover crops. If you have more plowing than you can do with teams, better consider the purchase of a tractor individually or in cooperation with neighbors.

Food Prices Decline.

The New York Produce exchange went on record recently as favoring retention of the prices and regulations controlling in the 1918 wheat harvest and a discontinuance of the policy of government price-fixing as applied to hogs, coarse grain and other foodstuffs. The exchange directed its board of managers to appeal directly to the President to lift the war-time restrictions upon hogs and the grains.

There has been a drop of as much as 15 cents a pound in wholesale price of butter within two weeks, with a rally yesterday, creameries selling 48 to 53 cents. Eggs, too, sold off sharply, the best lots selling at 60 to 61 cents a dozen. Owners of dairy products in cold storage warehouses are alarmed and are offering concession to buyers. Government and foreign buying of various foods has nearly ceased, and exporters are buying food in South America and Australia. Eggs broke 10 cents yesterday. Hay is $2 to $4 a ton lower under larger supplies, the best selling at $28 to $29.

Team Work Wins In Fight With Diseases.

It is easier and more economical to prevent the introduction of disease into a herd or flock than it is to eliminate it. Every possible precaution should be taken by the stockman to prevent the introduction of disease on his premises. In recent years animal losses directly or indirectly from disease have amounted to more than $200,000,000 annually, but with proper team work between Federal, State and local authorities and stockmen these losses can be promptly and greatly reduced.

How Different Kinds of Goods Stand Washing.

A cloth of plain weave shows soil quickly, but if it is firmly woven, it stands rubbing well and the dirt is easily removed by washing. On the other hand, a loosely woven plain cloth must not be rubbed hard and must be carefully handled in drying so that the threads will not pull out of place.

A twilled cloth does not show soil as readily as plain, but it seems to hold the dirt more tenaciously. Materials of satin weaves do not stand friction as well as those of plain weave.

Fancy, part gauze and part solid goods of the so-called leno weave not only stand very little friction but when washed must be carefully pulled and stretched while drying to have the goods keep its original shape and size.

Loosely woven materials of all kinds have greater absorption powers than the closely woven varieties; this means less bluing for the loosely woven goods.

These are suggestions made by home economics experts in the Department of Agriculture.

One method of removing the down from ducks is to sprinkle powdered rosin over the duck's body and dip the bird into hot water, which melts the rosin so that the down and rosin can be rubbed off easily with the hand, leaving the body clean.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

A GOOD ROAD IN OHIO COUNTY.

No, the above is not a fact, but indeed, a possibility. What would you think of a really good road all the way from your home to your school, your church, and your principal place of business? All such roads can be made good, none need to be slighted.

It was partly because men of advanced years and considerable experience testified before the Fiscal Court that in all their lives they had never been able to travel fifteen miles in any direction from their homes in Ohio County all the way over a good road, that it was thought proper and in fact, necessary to call an election to vote upon the question of a twenty-cent road tax. These men were good citizens of Ohio county, and were testifying out of their own experience.

The question of good roads in Ohio County is not altogether a question of men to manage the roads, but largely a question of money to pay for them. Surely, in more than one hundred years of the existence of the County, some man or set of men, would have been produced who could make and keep up some good roads in the county, if such could be done by men alone.

But the experience of these more than one hundred years has taught that it is not a matter of men but of system, and a good system takes money. If the money is put up there will be good men found to spend it wisely and well. Such men there are in the county, and plenty and they will be given the opportunity. A good system properly financed is bound to get good results.

A good road is an investment that pays high interest. The price of every piece of land in the county depends largely upon the roads. Every community where there are good roads receives a generous share of profits from persons passing through and at the same time such communities have an outlet for their own use and benefit. With the right of way cleaned off, with the hills graded, with the roads widened, crowned up and kept well drained and drained, and with the bridges and culverts fixed and kept in good state of repair, verily, Ohio County would be a better place to live in.

Vote the road tax. Do your own duty toward the roads in your community and all these things and more, can be done.

Getting Rid Of Colds.

The easiest and quickest way to get rid of a cold is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This preparation has been in use for many years and its value fully proven. No matter what remedy you use, however, care must be taken not to contract a second cold before you have recovered from the first one, and there is serious danger of this. A man of middle age or older should go to bed and stay in bed until fully recovered. It is better to stay in bed three days at the start than three weeks later on.

WOUNDED FELL DEAD

Senate Starts Probe On Treatment Of American Soldiers.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Investigation by the Senate Military Committee of American rest and embarkation camps in France was urged in the Senate today by Senator Lodge and other Republicans, who submitted telegrams and newspaper articles reflecting alleged mistreatment of wounded and other soldiers.

A telegram presented by Senator Lodge from John J. Bush, of the Michigan Society of New York, stated that wounded soldiers arriving at New York declared that soldiers at Camp Alganon made serious charges. It was stated that wounded men had "dropped dead in line" where men were forced at mess to stand in mud over their boot tops, and that the camp had been popularly dubbed "Camp Agony" with a guardhouse overflowing with men confined for trivial infractions of military regulations.

Senator Lewis, of Illinois, Democrat, asked that a copy of the telegram be sent to Secretary Baker, who, he declared, was ready and anxious to investigate all such charges. Senator Lodge replied that he would be delighted with that course, but felt the Military Committee should act, because, he asserted, past experience has demonstrated that reports to Secretary Baker of such incidents have been "wholly useless."

"I want an investigation," said Senator Lodge, "that will not result in suppressing or whitewashing."

Senator New, of Indiana, a Republican member of the Military Committee, said that on January 2 a resolution he introduced for investigation of conditions at the Breck camp had been blocked by Democratic opposition, and that although reported to Secretary Baker no results had come from the Secretary's investigation.

STORY OF NUMBER 40.

40 years ago an old doctor was putting up a medicine for diseases of the blood, that cured the worst cases of specific blood poison, and thus proved that the cures were permanent. After many years I secured the prescription (being a druggist), and took each ingredient separately and referred to my U. S. Dispensary and other authoritative books on medicine and found the medicinal properties set down as follows: "Employed in diseases of the glandular system, in blood poison, scrofula, constipation, stomach and liver troubles, chronic rheumatism, catarrh, in sores, ulcers, skin eruptions, mercurial and lead poisoning. Under its use nodes, tumors and scrofulous swellings that have withstood all other treatment disappear as if by magic." To commemorate my fortieth year as a druggist I named this medicine "Number 40 For the Blood." J. C. Mendenhall, Evansville, Ind. Sold by Ohio County Drug Co.

Sandefur's road; thence with his road S. 72 1/2 E. 54 poles to a stone; thence with his line S. 88 1/2 E. 75 poles to a stone in Luther Leach's line; thence with his line N. 5 1/2 W. 30 poles to a stone set one pole and 21 links N. 77 1/2 W. from a sugar tree; thence N. 28 1/2 W. 64 poles to the beginning. Containing 50 acres, more or less. This being the same land conveyed by Leach to Arbuckle recorded in deed book 42, page 551. Ohio County Clerk's office.

How Many Days Per Year Should a Tractor Work To Be a Profitable Investment?

The number of working days for an advanced tractor like the Case 10-18 is rapidly increasing. In early days a tractor's chief duty was considered plowing. Men bought principally for that purpose twenty-six years ago, when we first began to build motor tractors.

In later years, with the introduction of our smaller sizes, men were satisfied with a maximum of 30 days' use per year.

But war-time conditions have brought about changes not only in the mechanical development of tractors, but in their adaptation to multiplied uses.

More Ways to Use Your Tractor

Nowadays many farmers attain as high as 200 days' use per year, although the average, of course, is considerably less.

Our latest and best small tractor, the 10-18, is purposely designed for maximum use. It is adaptable for all kinds of work. It represents years of study in the field, dozens of extensive investigations.

We have found that 9 out of 10 farmers consider plowing ability of first rank, then come discing, pulverizing and harrowing, belt work, shelling, shredding and feed grinding, harvesting, road work, threshing, hauling, sawing wood, cutting ensilage and silo filling, haling straw, planting and seeding, and stump pulling.

The above uses are stated in their relative importance, as tabulated in a recent investigation.* The same investigation discloses that a tractor spends 63.47 per cent of its time in the field, and 35.37 per cent on the belt.

Ever Ready

The Case 10-18 is small and compact. It weighs little more than a team of horses. Its length is 102 inches, width 56 inches and height 54 1/2 inches. It turns in a 22-foot circle, and can get around easily. It goes through a small gate or door and easily shares the road with other vehicles.

While rated at 10 horsepower on the drawbar, it develops nearly 14. While rated at 18 on the belt, it develops up to 24. Thus one has the assurance that it is ever ready for an emergency. No farmer should buy a tractor without knowing its reserve horsepower.

There are dozens of improvements in this Case 10-18. For instance, it has a one-piece main frame, with a four-cylinder engine mounted crosswise. This frame construction affords a dust-proof housing for the rear axle, bull pinion shaft, transmission and the bearings for these parts. It also provides a base for the motor.

This type of construction brings rigidity. It minimizes vibration and prevents disalignment of gears, which are all cut steel and fully enclosed. Thus we multiply strength, reduce weight and conserve power.

Greater Economy

Another feature is its economical consumption of kerosene. It has a Case Syphon Thermostat which controls the cooling system and insures complete combustion of kerosene. And it prevents raw fuel from passing by the pistons and diluting oil in the crank case.

An improved air-washer delivers clean air to the carburetor. No grit nor dust gets into the cylinders to minimize their efficiency and shorten their life.

Our illustrated booklet describes all the advanced ideas in the new Case 10-18. Get a copy by all means, so that you may judge tractors well by acquainting yourself with the latest and best practices.

We will gladly send a copy free. Or it may be obtained from a Case Dealer.
